SKILLS

Palestinian American who possess a strong command over several programming languages and frameworks, including C#, Java, MVC, API, SQL, and Git. My proficiency in C# enables me to develop robust and scalable applications within the .NET framework. With Java, I excel at creating versatile and platform-independent solutions, utilizing its object-oriented programming principles. Additionally, I have hands-on experience with MVC (Model-View-Controller) architecture, enabling me to build modular and maintainable web applications. My expertise in API development empowers me to design and implement efficient and secure interfaces for seamless data exchange between different software systems. I am also proficient in SQL, enabling me to work with relational databases, perform complex queries, and optimize database performance. Lastly, my familiarity with Git allows me to effectively manage source code, collaborate with teams. With these skills, I am well-equipped to contribute to projects across diverse technological landscapes. I am also fluent in both English and Arabic.
